EDUCATION

2016 - present Ph.D, University of Washington, School of Aquatic and Fishery Sciences, Seattle, WA

- Major: Aquatic and Fishery Sciences
- Committee Chair: Gordon Holtgrieve
- Dissertation "Applied ecosystem chemistry: linking biogeochemical and physiological processes to ecological interactions and management practices"

2011 - 2015 B.A., Boston University, Boston, MA

- Major: Biology, specialization in ecology and conservation biology (summa cum laude)
- Minor: Marine Science
- Honors thesis: "Identifying high energy prey species in the Gulf of Maine ecosystem"

RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

Bio-geochemical cycling in riparian soils and compensatory management	2017 - present
University of Washington: Graduate Research	Seattle, WA
Used stable isotopes of inorganic nitrogen sources to assess the contributions of salmon carcasses to soil productivity, and the effect of nitrogen transformations on isotopic signatures.

Historical coastal productivity and predator trophic dynamics	2016 - present
University of Washington: Graduate Research	Seattle, WA

Using compound specific stable isotope analysis to address changes in harbor seal trophic position in coastal WA and Puget sound over the past 100 years in response to productivity and prey availability to generate indicators for integrated assessments for management.

Spatio-temporal variability in predator trophic dynamics 2016 - present

University of Washington: Graduate Research Seattle, WA

Applying compound specific stable isotope analysis to address spatial variability in harbor seal trophic position response to climatic regime shifts in 2 regions in WA, and 3 regions in AK.

Methodological assumptions of trophic position estimates 2017 - present

University of Washington: Graduate Research Seattle, WA

Using a first order kinetics model applied to stable isotope data to quantify the effects of tissue turnover rates and variability in isotope signature of primary producers on trophic position calculations using theoretical and observed data.

Translation of uncertainty in environmental science in popular press 2019– present

University of Washington: Research Derby Seattle, WA

Using text mining strategies, we analyzed the way uncertainty is expressed in scientific articles compared to popular press reports on those articles. Popular press expresses more uncertainty when the article 'hedges' its results but this varies based on outlet.

Monitoring and assessing salmonid escapement May 1, 2016- September 1, 2016

US Forest Service: Fishery Technician Sitka, AK

Collected and analyzed limnological data and conducted mark-recapture escapement counts for a subsistence sockeye salmon fishery.

Disease transmission and threats to endangered species June 1, 2015 - February 1, 2016

US Fish and Wildlife Service: Hydrology and Wildlife Technician Hanalei, HI

Collected and analyzed water quality and hydrologic data to assess the transmission of avian botulism in five species of endangered water birds.

Investigations in tropical ecosystems January 15, 2015 - June 1, 2015

Boston University: Undergraduate Research Tiputini, Ecuador

Research projects for the tropical ecology program included project planning, data collection and reports. Example Projects: plant distribution in terra firme verse varzea environments, and assimilation of foreign individuals into colonies of social spiders.

HONORS

Washington SeaGrant and National Marine Fisheries Service Population Dynamics Fellowship 2019-Present

University of Washington College of the Environment Research Derby, First Place, 2019

Jeff Cederholm Scholarship, American Fisheries Society WA/BC Chapter, 2018

Clairmont L. and Evelyn S. Egvedt Fellowship, University of Washington, 2016-2017

Pamela Posen Endowed Memorial Scholarship, Boston University, 2015

Undergraduate Research Opportunity Grant Recipient, Boston University, 2014

Laura Vincent Prize for Original Research, Boston University, 2013

TEACHING EXPERIENCE

Conservation and Management of Aquatic Resources (FSH 323): TA Autumn 2017

University of Washington: Graduate Student Seattle, WA

Conducted weekly lab sessions on fisheries management, conservation, and writing skills. Contributed to examine questions and graded writing assignments. Delivered three guest lectures.

Tropical Ecology Program (BI 438, BI 439, BI 440, BI 441): TA February 1, 2016 - May 1, 2016

Boston University Quito, Ecuador

Coordinated and led field excursions and assisted students in developing research projects, including 8 days in the Galapagos, 10 days on the Ecuadorian coast, and 28 days at in Amazonian Ecuador (Tiputini Biodiversity Station), prepared and delivered guest lectures.

Organic Chemistry and Basic Statistics and Probability	October 1, 2013- December 15, 2015
Boston University Educational Resource Center: Undergraduate	Boston, MA

Career Development and Community Service

Fisheries Interdisciplinary Network of Students	2019-present
Research Derby Chair

Fisheries Interdisciplinary Network of Students	2016-2018
